The Overlord's heart

It was the most amazing spectacle to see so many people gathered for a broadcast like this-normally only those suffering sickness would don eyewear.

Of course it was a sight to be seen alone by the Overlord from a transmission point-away secluded by mountains of its own nano-molecular render.

What the collected citizens could see was positioned xyz spatially in the centre of the crowded-space a gap surrounding weather in antique barometer.

Mapped onto their visionary virtual sight of themselves in third person among their fellow worshippers-all ages could visualise in view floating,
yes, a beating heart.

Graphic and realistically moistened reflecting dark light it was rumoured that the atmosphere creating-culture made it pulse so strongly using blood ink not black.

Andrew Gryf Paterson, 2000.